Clay's Notes

CDC flies have some sort of magical property. I have become a big fan of Rene Harrop over the years and his creative use of CDC fibers. I like the fact that this pattern has a body that just covers the hook shank. It is tied sparse and has a delicate look to it. All this lends to a very slender profile.

This fly can be tied in Olive or Tan or whatever color matches the caddis in your neighborhood.

Get creative at your vice and create your own version of this CDC Low Profile Caddis.
